Anglers plug away at bass

A.C. plugs, invented by Allen S. Cole, are catching really big fish.

So far more than 100 largemouth bass weighing more than 10 pounds have been taken on this new A.C. plug.

Rick Grover at Anglers Marine in Anaheim. Calif., an outstanding bass fisherman, who is trying to set a record with a 25-pound bass in California thinks these huge 9-inch-plugs will set new records for big-mouths soon. Rick says these big plugs are also taking really big rockfish.

The 23rd annual National Hunting & Fishing Day on Sept. 24 will feature open houses at hundreds of sports clubs. Pros will answer the questions of amateurs and teach the public safe hunting, shooting and angling methods. Maryland's biggest NHIF Day event will be held rain or shin at Remington Farms near Chestertown for some 5,000 outdoor fans and their families.

DNR has announced its fall striped bass season for recreation and charter fishing in Chesapcake Bay as Sept. 24 to Nov 14 with bag limits of one a day for anglers and two a day on charter boats.

The Potomac River recreation season is Sept. 30 to Oct. 30 and Nov. 4 through 13. The Charter boat season is Oct. 1 to Nov. 6 with bag of two on guide boats

DNR says "We may keep open the rockfish fall season past Nov. 14 or longer." The size is 18 inches.

The canyons off Ocean City are still producing marlin, and a few yellowfin tuna and dolphin, the inlet has some weakfish to 7 pounds plus 2 to pound flounder in the East Channel, snapper blues are in the surf now, bottom fish are taking blood worms baits.

Chummers have the edge for bluefish at mid-bay where Spanish mackerel have increased in numbers and size. Jumbo spot can be had in the same area along with croakers 9 to 14 inches long and 10- to 18-inch weakfish or sea trout

From Cove Point north to the bay bridges small bluefish or snappers are now taking trolled small hose baits Eastern Bay also has snappers plus good bottom fishing for pot croakers and a few trout

Above the bridges snapper blues and even a few Spanish macks are being taken up to Swan Point, blues like small hose and macks like small spoons

Some of the best area fishing right now is in the Inlet at Ocean City.

The trick is to get hold of some live spot and then drift them from a boat off the south jetty, preferably on its northern side

I catch my spot on bits of bloodworm at the launching ramp in West Ocean City and keep them alive in one of those yellow minnow buckets hanging off the stern of my boat.

The seatrout that will eat those spot are real tiderunners, running up to 7 or 8 pounds in weight.

A slammer blue might inhale that spot, too, so be forewarned

The spot in the Chesa peake are getting ready now to drop out of the bay, along with the croakers that have supplied so much fun this summer But their place is being taken by the Span ish mackerel that have now moved into our mid-Bay waters, from Cove Point up to the Sharps Island Light They are mixed in with snapper bluefish, with the mackerel hitting small spoons re trieved very rapidly

Those small blues are even up the bay as far as Love Point at the northern tip of Kent Island

Kenny Wallace named as fill-in for improving, but critical Irvan

the strain of the past few days, there were some distinguishable smiles on the tired faces of Ernie Irvan's race team.

Irvan, the Winston Cup star known for his quick wit, remained in a Michigan hospital yesterday after suffering severe head and lung injuries in a weekend crash.

Back in Charlotte, team owner Robert Yates called on Kenny Wallace to fill in for Irvan, who was in critical but stable condition and showing signs of improvement.

Wallace, 31, who has raced in two Winston Cup events this year, will drive Irvan's No. 28 Ford Thunderbird Saturday night in Bristol, Tenn. Qualifying for the Goody's 500 will begin Friday

The good news on Irvan's medical condition gave his crew the freedom to talk about their driver's unique sense of humor, which came through even , some body movements Monday eveduring the heat of battle.

When Irvan was running for the lead at Darlington last fall, crew chief Larry McReynolds asked him how the car was handling

"Yes, Johnny!" Irvan responded

Irvan continued to show signs of regained consciousness on Wednesday, responding to questions and requests from the medical staff, his doctor said. "I have mixed emotions," Wallace said during a news conference outside the Yates shop. "I'm not excited about having to do this. But no one could honestly say they wouldn't love a chance to drive the No. 28 car.'

It was also announced that Winston Cup driver Mark Martin will manage Irvan's Grand National team. He will also drive Irvan's Grand National car Friday night at Bristol.

Anemic Lemieux resigned to taking break from NHL

Lemieux has missed more than 100 games over the last five seasons due to periodic back problems but led the Penguins to Stanley Cup championships in 1991 and 1992

Right now, a more immediate concern than his back is a lack of energy and strength - apparently leftovers from the radiation treatments he had for Hodgkin's disease, a cancer of the lymph nodes

When he developed anemia, that was obviously very serious," Tom Reich, Lemieux's agent, said. "If you or I developed anemia, it's no big deal. But when someone with Hodgkin's disease develops anemia, it's a whole new ball same. The downside of the back is one thing, but the downside of Hodgkin's is something quite different

Lemieux has spent most of the summer playing in numerous charity and celebrity golf tournaments, including the Mobil Celebrity Invitational in suburban Boston last week

There, a fan asked Lemieux if he was going to play this season, and he replied, "I don't know You'll know in the next week or so Later, Lemieux told The Boston Globe, "Basically (the anemia) causes me to be fatigued. I was really fatigued all during the playoffs. They still can't figure out what it is '

The four-time NHL scoring champion would be only 29 if he returns in a year

Annapolis runners to get new twist on revamped Ten-Mile Run course

RUNNING

By GABRIELLE CUSTER

As luck would have it, major portions of the Naval Academy are still under construction and will be closed to runners during the Annapolis Ten-Mile Run, necessitating a little last minute revamping of the course

As promised, however, we bring you the new and improved Annapolis fem Mile Run course complete with map just in time to review it before the race

The race is scheduled to commence at 7 50 a m Sunday with runners lining up on Taylor Avenue for the start

This is different than in previous years when runners started inside the stadium parking lot and should elimi nate at least one hairpin turn said race director Sue Briers

The runners will go out Taylor Ave nue to Cedar Park Road then turn right onto Farragut Road and right again onto Rowe Boulevard This area of the course will be closed to motor vehicle. traffic from about 7.45 a.m. to 8 a.m.

Once on Rowe runners will head for the State House turning right onto College Avenue and clockwise around Church Circle to Main Street. At the end of Main runners will turn left past the Market House and down Randali Street towards the Naval Academy Instead of turning into Gate 1 at the academy however this year runners. will turn left and follow King George Street all the way to Route 450
